The hungry lion

One day, a _____Noun_____ was walking through the forest. He was very hungry, and he needed something to eat.

He went to the _____Noun - Plural_____ house, and said, "Please, may I have something to eat? I'm soooooo hungry!"

The _____Noun_____ replied, "Of course, I just started growing some _____Coordinating conjunction_____, and I have too much of it! Please, take some _____Noun_____!"

The _____Determiner_____ tried the _____Verb - Past Tense_____ and said "Blech! This _____Noun_____ tastes yucky! I don't like _____Noun_____ at all!" So the _____Noun_____ kept walking, and was now even hungrier. Soon, the _____Noun_____ met a travelling salesman, who carried a big _____Noun_____ on his back that smelled very good.

The _____Noun_____ asked the man, "Please, may I have something to eat? I'm soooooo hungry!"

"Of course!" said the salesman, "In fact, in my bag here I have a whole bunch of _____Noun - Plural_____! These special _____Noun - Plural_____ smell just like _____Noun_____! Please, take some _____Noun - Plural_____!"

So the _____Adverb_____, still very hungry, tried the _____Noun - Plural_____ that the salesman gave him. "Blech! These _____Noun - Plural_____ smell good, but they taste awful! I don't like _____Noun - Plural_____ at all!"

So the _____Noun_____ kept walking. And by now, he was very, very hungry! Soon, he met a small boy, sitting on the edge of a river, holding a _____Noun_____ with a string in his hands. The _____Noun_____ asked "Please, may I have something to eat? I'm soooooo hungry!"

The little boy looked at him and yelled, "Ahhh! It's a _____Noun_____! He's going to eat me!" The little boy ran down the road leaving his _____Noun_____ with a string, and leaving the _____Noun_____ very confused.

The _____Noun_____ saw the boy's _____Noun_____ had a _____Noun_____ on the end that the little boy was trying to pull in. The _____Noun_____ tried the _____Noun_____ and said, "Mmmmmm! This _____Noun_____ is delicious! I like fish very much!" So the lion, now full from the _____Noun_____, walked back into the forest for a nap.
