Our First Day

On our first day in Toronto, we'll check in to our apartment in Toronto neighbourhood. We'll leave our luggage on the piece of furniture and kiss for length of time beside our host's Adjective household item. Having worked up an appetite, we'll head off to Toronto restaurant for dinner. When we arrive, the host asks us Adverb if we have a reso. You tell him "no", and when he hears your accent, he tells us he'll gladly accept a British item in exchange for letting us jump the queue. Unfortunately, you're fresh out, so we decide to have a walk around Toronto location while we wait for a table. We see a(n) Canadian animal, and it comes right up to you! You offer it a Canadian food and it eats it out of your hand. Soon, the host calls me on my cell phone, and we Verb - Base Form all the way back to the restaurant. You order Food and I copy you. The meal was Adjective. After dinner, we settle the bill and say a cordial Canadian slang to our host on our way out the door. We watch the sun set over Toronto landmark and kiss under the pink and gold.
