Land of Peer Review

Once upon a time in the world of peer review there were 35 Noun - Plural who set out on a journey to Verb in the land of peer review. Peer review, as we know, is a type of coaching or Verb - Present Tense one another to Verb different skills and Noun. It has the ability to guide and Verb us. The peer matches had to meet Number times a year. The match ups were Adjective to give the peer review concept Noun and uniqueness. This meant the peers may be at different sites or have Adjective schedules making meetings more Adjective. We developed an interactive shared Noun in hopes of helping bridge the Noun gap and bring Noun to the entire group. Our second year we Verb - Past Tense in meeting times on Noun - Plural for the leaders as a safety Noun. We have now completed two years and the question still remains, was it Adjective. We believe there were some moderate successes with the peer matching and relationships were Verb - Past Participle. The time factor is still our Adjective - Superlative obstacle. But Why? We dug down and realized Peer Review remained very Noun Verb - Past Participle and not as Noun Noun as we envisioned. Together the task force agreed that although it is a good Noun, it had some Adjective comings.

The peer review task force set about looking for Preposition or subordinating conjunction near and dear to each Noun heart. What would make us grow and Verb together?. What could we do? After hours & Noun - Plural of wringing our hands and our Noun - Plural, Viola a new concept was Verb - Past Participle. We would develop a way to remove the task oriented piece and develop a brand Adjective peer review design where our 35 leaders would hope to gain Noun. And so that is what brings us Verb Noun. Our first ever Peer Noun leadership retreat and we hope it will be an eye opener on our new Noun.
