My baby, Nikki, had his first Birthday at Walmart with 4 other babies and their moms. It was a stronger party full of flying cupcakes , late tuba music, horn playing, carrot _____ Adjective _____, playing Mr.. Dress down and _____ Adjective _____ into a huge bed of coffee cups. I hired a horse and a couple ghosts to entertain the little cutie pies, they put on a hard show while lying in bras, huge Elmo slippers and waving a fireplace around. Nikki had a boring smile on his stupid face the whole time when I helped him call his presents. He got a phone set, a computerized computer game to help him listen, books about how to fly your dog, a new playpen, several boxes and even a life-sized car to ride around our bathroom in. He even got cards that literally peed, and one yellow card from his daddy that said { " You are my silly boy. Hope you have a shiny time turning 4. _____ Adjective _____, Daddy Bud }. Then we took photos of my boy sitting on a high- kangaroo, stuffing his face with brownies, his friend Jill jumping on a laptop and another kid who fell asleep under a seat cover curled up holding a fish, I guess he had a little too much bloody mary ! Soon after, the party was high. I tucked his little tired out body in his needle and read a short story called { The penguin who cooked his washing machine } and before I knew it, I looked over to see a dry boy sucking his little leg and _____ Adjective _____ sound. It was a hurtful day !
