De-escalation Techniques

De-escalation techniques are Adjective. Humans are built to freeze, fight, or Verb in dangerous situations. The most important objective is to lower the level of Noun so discussion is possible. If an aggressive situation occurs, start by taking a Adjective Noun. You should appear Adjective. Use a Adjective, Adjective tone of voice. Do not be Adjective; even if the comments or insults are directed toward you. Be respectful; even when firmly setting limits. Give the person plenty of room to move. Do not allow the person to come between you and the Noun. Be aware of items around you that can be used as Noun - Plural. Never turn your Noun for any reason. Address the person by Noun, it will ground them. Give choices where possible. Empathize with Noun - Plural, not Noun. Give the Noun - Plural of inappropriate behavior without threatening. Trust your Noun - Plural!
