EBO Boot Camp

First, I am Adjective. I think that telling the truth, even though at times it is hard is always the best option . When at school, with your friends, dealing with your teachers, and especially in the world outside of Proper Noun, when someone gives you their word, that is invaluable.

The second quality is a sense of humor. I think the ability to laugh and to help others laugh is important. Don't get me wrong, I think that there are times to be Adjective like during your school work and in serious situations, but other times having fun and laughing is very important. Sometimes we take ourselves too seriously ; we're too afraid about what other people think of us if we look silly or say something wrong. But I think that's what makes us unique. Being able to laugh at ourselves sometimes isn't easy but making other people happy is important to me.

The third quality is integrity. Last year I had the honor of being a Carson Scholarship winner. The fact that I was a student with integrity helped me to stand out. Integrity means having strong moral principles and not being afraid to stand up for what you believe in. Having respect for others, even if their beliefs are different than mine is important.

So as you can see I possess three very important characteristics that a leader should have. Noun, Noun, and a good sense of humor. I hope that you elect me to serve as the 6th grade Noun, because I know I would do a great job!
