My Trip to E*TRADE

My dad works at E*TRADE. He has worked there for number years. He always eats a kind of food for breakfast, because he says it makes his body part Adjective. He also tries to Verb - Base Form every morning because it helps him handle the more Adjective situations.

He wears a type of clothing, carries a Adjective Noun, and takes the form of transportation. He works in the Noun department. He says his Adjective part of his job is Verb - Present ends in ING. He likes it because it makes him Verb - Base Form. One time, he won an award for a Adjective Noun! And he got to go on a trip to a place because of it. I wanted to go, but he said I was too Adjective. So coming to work with him this morning was the next best thing. Today, I learned that he Verb - Present ends in S every day at noon, and he works in something called a Noun. When he's not Verb - Present ends in ING, he sits in his office all day and Verb - Present ends in S at the Noun. Just kidding. But it does seem like he Verb - Present ends in S to people on the phone about Noun. But it all sure beats going to school!

When I Verb - Base Form, I want to be just like my dad.
