Sheryl has many hobbies including Verb - Present Tense and Verb - Present Tense. One day, Sheryl and her daughter, Molly, were painting in the kitchen and she noticed that her hands would not stop Verb - Present Tense. The shaking continued for months and Sheryl was diagnosed with Proper Noun Disease. This diagnosis was a blow to Sheryl because she loved to Verb and could no longer hold the Noun and palette steady enough to be able to paint how she wanted to. With the diagnosis, Sheryl sank into a deep depression until her kids stepped in to help her cope with the disease. They used Noun - Plural as a way for her to express her Noun - Plural and Noun - Plural about Parkinson's.
