Fable

Long ago, there lived a boy named Keith. He had an extraordinary power, summoning fire from his Noun - Plural. Little did he know that his powers would be used for good.

One day, he awoke from a shrill Determiner encapsulating the whole village. He rushed out and saw an

Noun figure the size of a Noun sending in excruciating Noun - Plural and filling the village with fire. He was Adjective, yet he knew his village is crying, his people are crying. As a result, he used his powers to absorb the nearby fires into his Noun. The demon found what it was looking for:

Keith. The demon used its Noun and summoned the Noun from the Adjective end. Yet

, to his astonishment, the demon saw that Keith was unaffected by it. Then Keith used his hands and summoned the strongest flame ever! Those were the flames he absorbed from the houses, the Noun - Plural, and the environment the demon burned and therefore channeled them all back to the demon's Noun. The demon

Verb - Past Tense a Adjective Noun and was obliterated from existence.

Keith woke up and saw himself Determiner by the people around him... his journey has just started.
