Interlochen Welcome speech

Good morning and welcome to the Theatre Arts division of Interlochen Arts Camp! I would like to congratulate all of you on your acceptance into this prestigious division and wish you the best and most creative of summers.

My name is Bill Church - I am the Director of _____ Noun _____ Center for the Arts, which includes both _____ Noun _____ and the _____ Noun - Plural _____ Academy (Interlochen's boarding high school for the arts - more on that later). It is my great privilege to welcome you to the 88 th year of Interlochen Arts Camp. Originally known as the _____ Likely Porn Movie Name _____ Music Camp, you are part of a Verb - Present ends in ING _____ and _____ Verb - Present ends in ING _____ community of Theatre artists at Interlochen. Based on the successes

our productions, our students, our alumni, and our faculty and _____ Noun - Plural, Theatre Arts has become the second largest major here, behind only _____ Body Part, and we continue to develop in exciting new directions and to make our presence and importance known by the _____ Proper Noun community - and beyond. You are all part of an ensemble of hundreds of _____ Proper Noun - Plural artists here at Interlochen, who will collaborate and work together to create a thrilling season ranging from comedy to drama, and classical to _____ Sex position. And this year we welcome our newest program - _____ Verb - Present ends in ING for the _____ Noun. A special welcome to our very first group of students for this important new major.

Theatre at Interlochen Arts Camp 2015 has been, and will continue to be, a season of

_____ Verb - Present ends in ING,

and challenging work. Your presentations in just a few short weeks will bring to life a wide range of _____ Noun _____. Your faculty and directors will help you create beautiful and _____ Adjective _____ pieces of theatre and film featuring your unique abilities and talents. It is a thrilling season for actors here at Interlochen, and I urge you to celebrate the rich and diverse offerings all of us here today will be bringing to life over the next three weeks.

This summer has the potential to be one of those landmark memories of your life, one that will revisit you in many ways over the course of your career, whatever path you choose to take. The _____ Noun - Plural _____ and _____ Noun - Plural _____ that you make here will continue to matter to you for years to come. As we do at the beginning of every Theatre session, please take a moment to look at the _____ Body Part _____ around you - these are your artistic collaborators, your peers, your colleagues, your cast-mates, your best-friends- to-be, and the next generation of _____ Noun - Plural _____ artists.

The faculty and staff seated on stage today comprise an unparalleled group of talented, generous and committed theatre artists. The experiences and opportunities they will offer you every day over the next several weeks - if you will allow them in to your creative process - is, I believe, unmatched by any other educational summer theatre program anywhere in the country.

So, what is your contribution to this experience? Listen, take it all in, stay open, stay alert, be adaptable. Please don't let your triumphs swell your head and turn all of your focus inward. Please don't let your disappointments, should you have any, make you too quick to judge. Both of these pitfalls are personal traps that can be very difficult to climb out of. Theatre is a collaborative art form, and the joy of journeying through a successful process alongside your fellow young artists with a final product the entire department can believe in and celebrate is the ultimate goal of our work here.

The work ethics, practices and habits you are developing now - both good and bad - will solidify more rapidly than you can imagine. The way you conduct yourself in your work here at Interlochen may very well define your life and your art over the years to come.

Over the next several days you will be auditioning for your directors and for student directors in the motion picture arts division. It is vital that you remember this - your casting and performance assignments do not define who you are, nor do they measure your worth as a person and an artist unless you allow them to do so! Let me say that again: your casting does not define who you are, and it does not measure your worth as a person and an artist unless you allow it to do so! Many of the very best students we have had here - at both Academy and Camp - are the ones who have stood out in small roles, done passionate work in their studios and classes, and made the absolute most of every opportunity with which they were presented. Always keep close to your heart one of the quotes of Konstantin Stanislavsky (who founded modern acting theory in Russia over 100 years ago): "There are no small roles in any play; there are only actors who prove too small to fill out the potential of the rich characterizations that such roles promise." Let me repeat that one again: "There are no small roles in any play; there are only actors who prove too small to fill out the potential of the rich characterizations that such roles promise."

So make this your goal: commit 100% to your work here: your classes; your rehearsals; your homework; and your performances. Although this may seem a lofty goal, it is one that is essential if you strive to be a young artist. If you aim for this, the return on your personal investment will be both surprising and rewarding. If something is worth doing, it's worth doing all the way, with every imaginable bit of effort that you have.
