Beauty can be dangerous.

Last week, I met a woman at the entrance of the cinema. She was so Adjective and pretty; I expected she was coming to watch the same movie. I was so surprised that when I came into the theater, she was there. The movie was called " Adjective Noun - Plural "; I noticed that she was alone, and she called me to sit by her side. She was eating food and drinking Drink, I gave her a chocolate and she liked it. When the trailers ended, a very Adjective and fit guy arrived and told me that she was his wife, he hit my Part of Body and everybody in the cinema got really Adjective. I didn't know she was with somebody because she told me she was alone. Then, while they were Verb - Present ends in ING, I figured out that her husband was spying her because she has been cheating on him, and this was the Ordinal Number time she went to watch a movie by herself to meet guys. After this situation, I learned that men should not trust single women at the cinema, beauty can be dangerous sometimes.
