One day, a rich man named Proper Noun - Man Name suddenly came from the city and said that he was going to buy all the Noun - Plural in town. We could not let that happen! It may not have been pretty or glamorous, but it was our home. One evening, we were at the library trying to think of ways to earn Noun . Suddenly the old librarian, Proper Noun - Woman Name , brought us a dusty, old book. It smelled like mothballs. The book contained a map to the lost Noun of Pirate Proper Noun , the Noun who founded our town. We followed the map. We carefully explored a dark and dank Noun . We quickly climbed a small Noun . Eventually, we made our way to a crumbling, old building. In the basement of the building, we found the Noun . There were golden Noun - Plural , silver Noun - Plural , and colorful Noun - Plural . We were rich! We went to Proper Noun - Man Name and told him that our town wasn't for sale. We told him to leave quickly and quietly. That's the story of how we saved our Noun !
