Home alone

Proper Noun walked Noun from the Adjective Noun. It was the Adjective time his Noun wouldn't be home after Noun to meet him. They had a meeting with his older brother's principal at the high school and Repeat Last Proper Noun begged them to let him stay home. He was excited to have the house all to himself. He took his key from his pocket and opened the door. Trevor was greeted by his two Adjective shepherds, Ajax and Max. "Hi guys! Just me." Trevor locked the Adjective door behind him, like he promised his parents he would. He put his Noun on the table next to the Noun and his Noun on the floor. Then he looked around. "What should I do first?"

Repeat Last Proper Noun turned on the Noun and got a snack from the kitchen. After watching a few shows and eating more than he should, Trevor was bored. He looked at the two dogs. "Want to go outside to play?" He picked up two Adjective balls and walked to the Adjective glass door leading to the deck. He slid the Adjective bar out of the door and placed it on the floor. Trevor's mother insisted on keeping the bar there even if there was a lock. She said it was Adjective protection.

The dogs pushed their way outside and Repeat Last Proper Noun ran to keep up. The Noun slammed behind him. He chased the dogs all Preposition the house. When he was tired he threw the tennis balls up in the air. Ajax jumped in the air and caught one of the balls before it bounced.

Repeat Last Proper Noun threw the other ball to Max. "Good boy! Catch it just like Ajax did." Adjective throws later, Proper Noun - Plural and the dogs were Adjective and Adjective. They headed inside to warm up. Repeat Last Proper Noun - Plural tugged on the door but it would not budge. "No! We are locked out!" He ran to the Adjective door and tugged on it. It would not budge either. He tried all the windows on the first floor but they were locked too. He sat on the Noun and waited for his parents to come home. His mom opened the door and asked, "what are you doing out there?" "We got locked out." Repeat Last Proper Noun ran inside to warm up.
