HCDE 322

It is now week 10 of the quarter and all the students are feeling Adjective since it's dead week. These students were all enrolled in a class focused on teamwork and they thought the class was Adjective. Their instructor Michael was a Adjective lecturer and made class Verb - Present Tense.

They learned about their Verb - Present Tense personalities by taking the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator test and some of them were categorized as an "ESFJ" which stands for Verb - Present Tense: Starts with an E, Verb - Present Tense: Starts with an S, Verb - Present Tense: Starts with an F, and Verb - Present Tense: Starts with a J.

Next, they learned about emotional intelligence and learned about the Adjective John Maeda. A quote that stood out was "To me, it is an eloquent expression of not only an unattainable goal in life, but also the nature of human ambition-- of constantly wanting to become better" because most people in the world are constantly striving to become Adverb - Comparative each and every day and to represent themselves as the Noun - Plural they are.

The students also learned about the Tuckman's model and how the 5 stages are forming, storming, norming, performing, and mourning, just kidding they actually are _____, _____,

_____ and _____,

_____. This model is geared towards _____ groups and if used effectively with hard work and focus, the group will quickly become a _____ team.

An activity that the students participated in was creating a/an _____ tower out of spaghetti sticks and marshmallows, and "toilet cleaners" a different time. Most of the students were _____ because their tower didn't stay standing when the judge came around. The activity was _____ and the cheesy prize at the end was worth it to the winners.

Halfway through the quarter the students prototyped the design of a timer as a kickstarter project. The timers were all very _____ and were fully funded by billionaires, just kidding even though all the students really wish their ideas were fully supported.

One of the students wished to have a class-wide krump battle and is hoping to have it before the quarter is over.

Overall, the class taught the students how to be _____ Adjective team members, how to resolve _____ Adverb conflicts, how to manage their time _____ Adverb, and that communication is key.

In conclusion, the students couldn't be more excited about winter break and spending time with their _____ Noun - Plural during the holidays but they will never forget all the _____ Verb - Past Tense information they received in this class and they are ready to go into the real world and kick _____ Noun!
