Doing an action

One day, a           Noun           was           Verb - Present Tense           on the street when all of a sudden, a           Noun           was stuck on a           Noun          . The           Noun           had no choice but to be           Adjective           and           Preposition or subordinating conjunction           the           Noun          . It           Verb - Past Tense           to get on top of the           Noun          , and save the           Noun          . The           Noun           was considered a           Noun           from then on. The End.
