April fools

Keep it together. That's all I could say to them. I had no words for what was happening. We were sitting in the court room wondering what the verdict would be. It was April first and my wife knew that I hated April fools. I woke up to people shuffling all around in my home. Soon the Noun busted in my room and grabbed my wife. They yanked her out of our bed and took her down stairs. Followed them and screamed trying to figure out the problem. They told me that my wife was supposed to go to court a month ago and now they are forcing her to . Now we're here with our two Noun. I am trying to keep them calm because they are Verb - Past Tense. Soon the Noun came and he stood in front of us. He yelled "All rise". We rose up. Then he said the dumbest thing I have ever hear "APRIL FOOLS BLAKE". My children, wife, the Noun, the Noun, everyone laughed like this was a joke. I looked around and walked out. That was the end of our marriage.
