Fear

"Excuse me, are we on a _____Noun_____ break?" he _____Verb - Present ends in S_____. ?"We don't drink Repeat Last Noun _____," an _____Adjective_____ child responds.?"Then I guess the break is over!" he yells. "Back to work. Thanks."

This quote might be unfamiliar unless you have a _____Adjective_____ obsession with either _____Adjective_____ Disney Christmas _____Noun - Plural_____ or _____Noun - Plural_____ starring _____Celebrity_____ . But if you're a _____Adjective_____ person, I'll clarify.

The "he" is Bernard from The Santa Clause. The _____Adjective_____ elf with _____Adjective_____ dreadlocks, a _____Adjective_____ _____Color_____ _____Noun_____, and a callous, _____Adjective_____ attitude. Why is he significant? Because I am terrified of him.

When I first watched The Santa Clause, I initially thought it was a _____Adjective_____ movie. Some _____Noun_____ is spending Christmas Eve with his _____Noun_____ and he hears some _____Noun_____ on the _____Noun_____ and the _____Noun_____ goes outside and scares Santa who _____Verb - Present ends in S_____ of the _____Noun_____ and _____Verb - Present ends in S_____, causing the _____Noun_____ to put on the _____Noun_____ and become the new Santa Claus. Typical Disney _____Adjective_____. But THEN, Bernard comes into the picture, and the Repeat Last Adjective _____ turns to full-blown _____Adjective_____. Way to go Disney Channel, you've scarred a poor little _____Noun - Possessive_____ mind with your _____Adjective_____ elf dude.

Now, of course, I'm pretty _____Adjective_____ in this. I don't see any reason why anyone would be _____Adjective_____ of Bernard. Frankly, I'm not sure why I'm Repeat Last Adjective of him myself. That's why it's called an "_____Adjective_____" fear. It's a fear sans _____Noun_____. And there is no _____Adjective_____ explanation of why Bernard gives me the _____Noun - Plural_____. He just does. Of course, if I HAD to try and rationalize it, I'd say that maybe it's the _____Adjective_____ _____Noun_____. Maybe it's because he's a _____Adjective_____ meanie and the movie tries to play it off like he's just "_____Adjective_____" and "_____Adjective_____." No, he's a _____Adjective_____ meanie.

I once went to a party and was involved in a _____Noun_____ about meeting _____Noun - Plural_____. A _____Noun_____ next to me _____Verb - Past Tense_____ us that he had once met the _____Noun_____ who played Bernard in the Santa Clause. I was not _____Adjective_____. I was not _____Adjective_____. By association, that guy gave me the _____Noun - Plural_____ as well.

I'll never _____Verb - Base Form_____ my fear of Bernard. Sometimes I wonder if it's a _____Adjective_____ denial thing, that maybe as a _____Noun_____ I actually thought he was an _____Adjective_____ human being and the _____Noun_____ freaked me out and it translated to an _____Adjective_____ _____Noun_____, who knows? The _____Noun_____ is a complex and _____Adjective_____ infrastructure that makes us who we are while simultaneously driving us all insane, and helps us to understand _____Noun_____ while also giving us _____Adjective_____ fears like Bernard from The Santa Clause.
