Odyssey

Odysseus is a man of distinction and with the help of Athena looks pretty good when he arrives back home.

Unfortunately, as part of the Gods, Odysseus has some obstacles at first. When he returns to Ithaca, he is dressed in rags and looks like a           Noun          , to disguise himself among the suitors. When he sees Telemachus, he explains that he is his father, but he thinks that what Odysseus is saying is a           Noun          , or trick. Odysseus gets upset because his appearance and telling him he is his father should           Verb          , or be enough.

Unfortunately, Telemachus cannot believe that the man in front of him is his           Adjective          , or famous, father

. Once Odysseus explains his journey with the help of Athena he           Verb - Present ends in S           (s) from his disguise and Telemachus is in disbelief, or           Noun          .
