Help me find a stalker

Dear colleagues at the police office,

Yesterday I received a disturbing phone call from a woman, named Full name of a woman, who claimed a Adjective man is stalking her. I am writing you to provide you with all the information I have of this case and hope you will be able to track the stalker down.

The first night the stalker showed up, was on a Adjective Wednesday night in December. Lisa had just come from work and was enjoying a night of Verb - Present ends in ING at home by herself. She was sipping from her glass of drink, a guilty pleasure, when she saw a man's body part - singular sticking out of the curtain. She screamed and Verb - Past Tense, but soon she pulled herself together and a bit more Adverb asked: "Who are you?" No one answered and when she looked at the curtains for a second time, the man seemed to be gone. I must have imagined it, she thought, and she went to bed.

Later that week, Woman's name - same as before had brought a date home at night. He wasn't particularly her type, but she thought he was Adjective, so she asked him to come in for coffee. She was trying to be good host and offered him food, but she had run out of Noun - Plural. She was feeling a bit guilty for not being able to offer him what a good host would offer her guests, but he did not seem to care. After all, he was expecting something completely different. In country, where he was from, asking someone to come in for a cup of coffee actually means to ask someone in to Verb - Base Form. In preparation for this, he took off his article of clothing and uncovered his Part of body - same as before. Suddenly Woman's name - same as before realized who her date really was. This was the same Part of body - same as before as the one that had peeked out from behind the curtain... Fortunately, he got a mysterious phone call soon after he started undressing and quickly disappeared thereafter. All Woman's name - same as before saw from the window, was his silhouette Verb - Present ends in ING away in the dark streets. She has been receiving strange phonecalls from an anonymous number, and all she hears is Adjective verb - something that makes a sound - ending with ing.

As you can understand, Woman's name - same as before is traumatized and does not remember any of the details regarding her date/stalker. However, she is fairly certain that he had a tattoo of a Noun and misses about Number teeth. He is also believed to have Adjective body part - plural and a Adjective smile.
