Dream

You get ready for bed so you lay down and start counting           Noun          . One. Two. Three. You drift into a           Adjective           dream. You are the master of the world. There are people made out of           Food           and           Part of the Body          . They run in the parks made out of cat           Part of the Body          . The townspeople come to you saying a bad man stole the           Liquid           of           Person           the giant. They powered the world and everything went dark. You tried feeling around with your hands when you grabbed someones           Part of the Body          . They shrieked and punched you in your           Part of the Body          . That is when you wake up and realize that you are late for your job as a           Occupation          .
