Getting Bosh to play CS:GO

In a land much like our own, 3 friends _____Verb Past Tense_____ together, _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ _____Noun Plural_____ whenever they wanted. Their names were Veorge, Bosh and Hiras. Veorge had an extensive collection of _____Noun Plural_____ that he would often _____Verb Base Form_____. Hiras had the least number of _____Noun Plural_____ from the trio, but he would actually _____Verb Base Form_____ most of his to a non-autistic play time. Now we come to Bosh. My God...Bosh was so _____Adjective_____ when it came to _____Noun Plural_____! He had more than Hiras, but less the Veorge. However, the only one he would ever _____Verb Base Form_____ was Team Fortress 2. He was so addicted to it that he even made _____Noun Plural_____ about it, like a little _____Noun_____.

Veorge and Hiras knew they had to do something and do something fast, so they came up with a master plan to get Bosh to play CS:GO; a game he religiously _____Verb Past Tense_____ for no good reason at all. All Hiras had to do was hack into Bosh's PC, but that was easier said than done, because Bosh was no computer _____insult such as noob or weeb or whatever_____. He knew of Hiras' hacking abilities and would even acuse Hiras of his computer's natural glitches. Veorge came up with a better plan though. Not only was hacking illegal, but if the duo had to tell the tale (much like now), it may end up being way too _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ for the listeners.

Veorge's plan was much more _____Adjective_____. All they had to do was _____Verb Base Form_____ into Bosh's house and while he was _____Verb Base Form_____, access his Steam account and download CS:GO within _____Number_____ minutes (Bosh had _____fast internet speed in gigabits per second_____ internet speeds).

The night came and Hiras and Veorge were in their _____Noun_____. Hiras was wearing his _____clothing_____ and _____food_____ flavoured boots, while Veorge was wearing a carbon copy of Bosh's _____Noun_____ mask. They chucked a 5mm grappling hook round Bosh's windowsill and _____Verb Past Tense_____ upwards. They _____Adverb_____ opened his 20m window and _____Verb Past Tense_____ inside. Bosh's room was of moderate size with books like 'Peter Rabbit's stupid _____Noun_____ lying around the place. There was even an inflatable _____Noun_____ in the corner! In no time at all, Veorge spotted Bosh's computer and _____Verb Past Tense_____ over to it while Hiras followed close behind. Hiras _____Verb Past Tense_____ the on button and the machine wurred into life. Stunned at the noise, Hiras tried to quieten the beast by placing his _____Part of Body_____ over the fan grill, but to no avail. Veorge said "Don't be such a _____insult_____!" and pulled Hiras away from the PC. Veorge looked round and confirmed that Bosh was still asleep. The boys looked at Bosh's PC, but saw that it appearing to do anything. Hiras had been involved in many a lengthy conversation with Bosh and knew what the problem was. " All we have to do is _____Verb Base Form_____ it off and on again at least _____Number_____ times and it will work", he _____Verb Past Tense_____ in excitement. Veorge replied with a gentle nod and Hiras went ahead with the PC ritual, as it were.

After _____Number_____ minutes or so, the PC _____onomatopoeia_____ into life and the desktop screen loaded. Veorge loaded up Steam and hit install on CS:GO. They hid the install window and left the very way they came in. The next day, Hiras and Veorge asked Bosh, "Do you want to play CS:GO?" to which Bosh replied "Nah, Son, I am dissapoint" (spelt incorrectly on purpose). Bosh went to open Team Fortress 2, when he noticed that Counter Strike:

Global Offensive was in white. "How on Earth had it been installed?" he wondered to himself. He took one look at his mouse and lifted it to his _____Part of Body_____ so he could smell it. "aHA! Veorge and Hiras..."

A _____onomatopoeia_____ came to Hiras and Veorge's door the next day. Bosh was standing there with a crowbar ready to beat his friends round the head. Fortunately, Veorge and Hiras had come prepared and used pepper spray as soon as they saw Bosh standing before them. Bosh went to hospital and only played CS:GO after that day.

The end.
