For Emily

At Hogwarts, no charms class can ever be as harmless as it sounds and poor Emily who had been up all night was not expecting the chaos that ensued. After a hurried breakfast of and a glass of, Emily rushed to her charms classroom. The bell had already rung and she hurried past a corner and bang! she walked face first into Turning a dull colour, Emily scrambled to her feet and picked up her bag.
"I'm really sorry" she panted, looking at the boy to class and I'm late too." He held out a(n) hand. He straightened his house tie and winked at Emily. Then he down the corridor.

Emily just managed to enter her class on time and take her seat next to
"Are you alright?" the girl asked her.
"Yes, I'm fine." Emily said with a(n) smile. She pulled out her books, parchment and just as Professor Flitwick called the class to silence.
"Now, everyone. It is time to practice our cheering charms. These are very important for your upcoming examinations" he said in his voice. "Please get into pairs and begin practising." Emily looked round and spotted She waved in her friend's direction, indicating they should practice together. Her sight was blocked, however, by the adjective frame of He

?" His voice was, his tone
"Oh well, I was actually going to practise with -"
But he wasn't listening. He pulled out his wand and pointed it at Emily. "Shall I go first?"
Without waiting for her to answer he cast the spell on her and Emily instantly felt a wave of happiness and spread over her. Despite herself, she smiled.
"Did work?" he asked
"You know, I rather wish we were practising silencing charms; maybe then you'd shut up for a moment."
He looked rather at this. Emily pointed her wand at him in turn and cast the spell. His face relaxed and he looked as if he had just been Emily giggled.
"Very good!" said Flitwick as he passed next to them. He smiled adverbly at Emily and didn't notice that
