New Year in my Home Country

New Year's Day is one of the most Adjective holydays in my home country. People usually Verb Base Form their time with their Noun and Adjective Ends in EST friends. People frequently Verb Base Form untiringly and Verb Base Form excessively on this date. On the streets there is always very Adjective music and very Adjective people that (although they do not know you) invite you to their house. At midnight, sometimes you find people Verb Present ends in ING with a suit case because it is believed that if you do this at 12 am you will Verb Base Form all year long. I prefer to be with my Noun Plural, Noun and Noun Plural to give them a hug and Noun Plural.
