"What happened to the Beast such as an ogre?" murmured Person B, Person A Verb Past Tense his Part of Body in confusion, causing more blood to Verb Base Form out of the cut in his Part of Body. He had completely forgotten about it in all the confusion. They both Verb Past Tense along the riverside to the Verb Present ends in ING mound of Noun that was the Same beast, Insect Verb Past Tense around his Verb Present ends in ING Part of Body. "Well thank goodness, it turned out the balcony was an escape route after all" concluded Person B

"Hmm, I can't help feeling emotion for it though, I mean, it wasn't his fault he fell to his death. If we hadn't Verb Past Tense him in the first place he would still be in his den doing whatever Same beast - Plural do, and even though he Verb Past Tense all the innocent Group of something or people - Plural around his home it may just be what he's supposed to do, like how a Predator Verb Present ends in S an Prey. We Verb Past Tense him Adverb".

"Listen, his life was probably Adjective anyway. Now we have freed him, he's at peace"

"Yes, dead. Oh well, today has been... Adjective, I need a plaster, you need an ambulance, and the Same beast needs a hearse - and a Adjective one at that"
