The Elves and the Shoemaker

Not so long ago, in a Adjective village upriver, lived a shoemaker and his wife. One day, the shoemaker noticed that he only had one piece of Noun left to make his shoes. This made him very Adverb. During the night, he didn't Verb Base Form very well because he was so Adverb. But during the night, two elves Verb Past Tense to the shoe shop. The two elves Verb Past Tense all night, and they finished a Adjective pair of shoes. The next morning, the shoemaker was Adjective to find the shoes the elves had made. They were so Adjective ! A customer came to buy some shoes and paid lots of Noun for the pair of shoes the elves had made. The shoemaker bought lots more Noun to make more shoes. The elves returned again the next night, and made two pairs of Adjective shoes. The shoemaker woke up the next day and found them and was so Adverb ! To thank the elves, the shoemaker made them Adjective Article of Clothing. They were Adjective and the elves Verb Past Tense them. The end!
