South Western Railway RMT Strike (1)

_____Date_____

_____Adjective_____ Passenger

It is with great _____Feeling eg regret or happiness_____ that I am writing to let you know that the RMT Executive has _____Verb Past Tense_____ its intention to _____Verb Base Form_____ strikes on the _____Direction_____ _____Compass point - Ends in ERN_____ Railway, on _____Day of Month_____ and _____Day of Month_____ _____Month_____. This is _____Adverb_____ _____Adjective_____ given the _____Adjective_____ talks we have been having with _____Adjective_____ union representatives.

Our discussions have been around the _____Verb - Present ends in TION_____ of a _____Adjective_____ fleet of suburban trains, which will start to arrive in _____Year_____ and be fully _____Verb Past Tense_____ by _____Month_____ _____Year_____. These _____Adjective_____ trains will _____Verb Base Form_____ the travelling experience for many of you, as they will have _____Noun_____, _____Noun Plural_____, at _____Place on train_____ _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ facilities and improved _____Noun Plural_____.

These _____Adjective_____ trains can be _____Verb Past Tense_____ in a variety of ways and we have been talking to the RMT about which method of _____Verb - Present ends in TION_____ will be most _____Adjective_____ in terms of performance and customer service. As part of these discussions we have _____Verb Past Tense_____ that we will _____Verb Base Form_____ a Guard on every train; and that those Guards will continue to be _____Verb Past Tense_____ in _____Noun_____ procedures.

Our _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ longer distance trains, which will all be _____Verb Past Tense_____ during the franchise, are not part of these discussions and will continue to _____Verb Base Form_____ in the same way as they do today.

We have also made it _____Adjective_____ to the RMT, we are _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ _____Noun Plural_____, _____Noun Plural_____ and the _____Noun Plural_____ and _____Noun Plural_____ of Guards. In fact, as we _____Verb Base Form_____ our fleet and services, we will be creating more _____Noun Plural_____.

Earlier this week, following a meeting with our local RMT representatives, we wrote to the RMT General Secretary setting out a _____Noun_____ for the operation of the new suburban fleet which would allow these talks to _____Verb Base Form_____ in the joint hope of finding a _____Noun_____ which would not _____Verb Base Form_____ you , our passengers.

It is therefore _____Adverb_____ frustrating that, despite this, the RMT Executive chose to ignore this offer and instead involve our employees and you, our passengers, in _____Adjective_____ strike action.

No one wants a strike. I still hope that common sense will _____Verb Base Form_____ and the RMT will come back to the table and work with us to find a way _____Direction_____. While this would be by far the _____Comparative term eg best_____ outcome for all of us, we cannot _____Verb Base Form_____ on this. To this end, we have _____Verb Past Tense_____ a team of contingency Guards from within our workforce to provide you with the _____Comparative term_____ service possible should these strikes go ahead. I sincerely hope we don't have to _____Verb Base Form_____ them and that we can _____Verb Base Form_____ the RMT that industrial action is not in anyone's interests.

Yours sincerely
