The Girl on the Train (Part I)

We meet Rachel (_____famous actress_____) as she _____Verb Present ends in S_____ on a _____public transport_____. She tells us her husband always said she had an _____Adjective_____ imagination. Rachel explains that she has been on this _____same public transport_____ for years and always _____Verb Present ends in S_____ in the same seat, three cars down, so she has the perfect view of a _____Noun_____. She says she is a _____Adjective_____ person now and thinks people can see that in her, as a man in a suit makes _____Adjective_____ _____Part of Body_____ contact from a nearby seat. Rachel tells us she likes to _____Verb Base Form_____ about the lives of all the people she _____Verb Present ends in S_____. She wonders if people who live by the _____same public transport_____ even _____Verb Base Form_____ it when it goes by. We see her on various trips watching a _____Adjective_____ woman in her home with her husband. Some days, they _____Verb Base Form_____; other days, they have _____Noun_____. She says they have the perfect marriage and she says that's the marriage she could have had. Rachel tells us that she herself was previously married and lived _____Number_____ doors down before her husband left her for another woman. Rachel wonders what the _____Adjective_____ woman's name is and, while Rachel _____Verb Present ends in S_____ in a pad, imagines the woman to be some sort of _____profession_____.

It's now _____Number_____ months earlier and we meet Megan (_____actress_____), the woman Rachel has been fascinated with from the _____same public transport_____, as she tells someone that she has had many different roles in her life including a _____Adjective_____ teenager, _____profession_____, a _____profession_____, a _____profession_____, and a _____profession_____ but not necessarily in that order. Its revealed she' s _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ to a _____profession_____,

Dr. Abdic (_____actor_____). She says that her husband convinced her to take a job as a _____profession_____ to help convince her to become a _____Noun_____, which she has no desire to be. The _____profession_____ asks if it _____Verb Past Tense_____ and she says that when she gets home, she _____Verb Present ends in S_____ to shower to get the smell of the _____Noun_____ off of her.

We are then introduced to Anna (_____famous actress_____) who is _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ her baby, Evie, in the _____Noun_____ while gushing about how her husband sang happy birthday to her that morning. The nanny comes in, who is revealed to be Megan. She says that they've been getting more hang-ups on the telephone and they speculate it's Rachel, who used to be married to Anna's husband. As Megan and Anna are _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ a top sheet together, Megan says she the gallery called her back and she's going to _____Verb Base Form_____ the nanny job after that day. Anna tells her that's uncool since she'll have to be _____Adjective_____ the following day. Megan suggests she gets a job again and that a lot of mothers work. Anna complains that she has to go grocery shopping and whatnot and being a mother is a huge job, pointing out that Megan wouldn't know. Later, Anna has a flashback of Rachel _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ her baby from the house and wakes up, _____Adjective_____.
