The Piranha Brothers - Monty Python (Part III)

"I decided on a Adjective approach, some form of disguise, as the old Item of clothing and are a bit of a giveaway. Luckily my years with Bristol Rep. stood me in Adjective stead, as I assumed a Adjective variety of disguises. I tracked them to Cardiff, Verb Present ends in ING as the Reverend Smiler Egret. Hearing they'd gone back to London, I assumed the identity of a Profession , Brian Stoats. On my arrival in London, I discovered they had Verb Past Tense to Cardiff, I followed as Gloucester from King Lear. Verb Present ends in ING on a Noun I spent several months in Foreign City as Blind Pew, returning through the Panama Canal as Ratty, in Toad of Toad Hall.
Back in Cardiff, I Verb Past Tense my Noun as Sancho Panza in Man of la Mancha which the "Bristol Evening Post" described as 'a Adjective performance of Adjective perception', although the "Bath Chronicle" was less than enthusiastic. In fact it gave me a right Verb Present ends in ING . I quote: 'as for the performance of Superintendent Detectives first name Detectives nickname Detectives surname as Sancho Panza, the audience were Verb Past Tense by his Adjective Nationality Noun and Verb Past Tense by hisAdjective
Noun Plural' The "Western Daily News" said: 'Sancho Panza (Mr) Verb Past Tense an cries of "What's all this then?"" Against this kind of opposition for the Brothers the end was Adjec	tive .
