Catherine Pierce poem

Let someone say you are Adjective and you become Adjective, an eel in the Adjective Ends in EST possible way, Adjective Abstract Noun and Adjective Abstract Noun wherever you Verb Base Form your Noun. The whole Noun Verb Present ends in S to a stop to watch you Verb Base Form with an Adjective Noun in hand.

Your Noun Plural so Adjective, or so Adverb not. Why not try

Abstract Noun, or Adjective Abstract Noun, why not Verb Base Form Adjective Abstract Noun?

Even your Abstract Noun- Plural are Adjective.

Let someone say you are Adjective and the Abstract Noun, too, becomes Adjective, every Noun Verb Present ends in ING not with a Abstract Noun of Abstract Noun but with its own Adjective

Abstract Noun, its desire for every Noun moving through its _____ Adjective _____ Noun _____, in particular you. Of course you.

You _____ Adjective _____.

You _____ Adjective _____.

You of the _____ Adjective _____ Noun Plural _____ and _____ Noun Plural _____, my god, the _____ Noun Plural _____!

The _____ Noun Plural _____ overhead--what _____ Adjective _____

_____ Verb Present ends in ING _____. Your _____ Adjective _____ Noun _____ a _____ Adjective _____ Abstract Noun _____ in your mouth.

Does it matter if the words never lead to a _____ Adjective _____, _____ Adjective _____ Noun _____?

Does it matter if the words were said a decade ago by someone whose middle name you've _____ Verb Past Tense _____? Does it matter if you know the _____ Noun _____, or ever did?

The _____ Abstract Noun- Plural _____ are what matters, _____ Adjective _____ Noun Plural _____ in your hand. Here:

you are _____ Adjective _____. Put that _____ Noun _____ next to the others. Make a Noun of Verb Present ends in ING and follow it to Abstract Noun .
