... However, there was the _____ Noun full in sight, so there was nothing to be done but start again. This time she came upon a large flower-bed, with a border of _____ Noun, and a _____ famous person growing in the middle.

"O Tiger-lily," said Alice, addressing herself to one that was _____ Verb Present ends in ING _____ Adverb about in the wind, "I wish you could talk!"

"We can _____ Verb Base Form," said the Tiger-lily: "when there's anybody worth _____ Verb Present ends in ING to ."

Alice was so _____ emotion that she could not speak for a minute: it quite seemed to take her breath away. At length, as the Tiger-lily only went on _____ Verb Present ends in ING about, she spoke again, in a _____ Adjective voice--almost in a whisper. "And can all the flowers talk?"

"As well as you can," _____ synonym for said the Tiger-lily. "And a great deal louder."

"It isn't manners for us to _____ Verb Base Form, you know," said the Rose, "and I really was wondering when you'd speak! Said I to myself, 'Her _____ Part of Body has got some sense in it, though it's not a one!' Still, you're the right colour, and that goes a long way."

"I don't care about the colour," the Tiger-lily remarked. "If only her Part of Body curled up a little more, she'd be all right."

Alice didn't like being Verb Past Tense, so she began asking questions. "Aren't you sometimes emotion at being planted out here, with nobody to take care of you?"

"There's the same famous person in the middle," said the Rose: "what else is it good for?"

"But what could it do, if any dangerous things came?" Alice asked.

"It says hyphenated noise!" cried a Daisy: "that's why its Part of Body are called made-up hyphenated thing!"
