

bunny

1. Noun Plural
2. Verb Past Tense
3. Noun Plural

bunny

It started off when my bunny -to-be got down on 12 webbed feet and asked me to butcher him while holding up the most funniest sleigh I'd ever seen. I said no. On a fruity september night I married a furry man named pokerman who I just call " boonie for short. I had 18 Noun Plural and he had 52 groomsmen. All of my bridesmaids wore short gray tap shoes with matching life jackets, white bibs and dark red fishnet stockings while I sported a wisdom tooth -less pointy brown overalls with red dots, a bow just below my face and black heels. All of his groomsmen Verb Past Tense green suits. My maid of honor was my grandfather. We had a spooky wedding cake that was Noun Plural on the outside and popcorn on the inside with rosemary, it was actually a rose velvet cake in the shape of a monster because we both have a thing for them. The music was sleeveless and we undressed practically all night! The food was immediate too!