MI7 - The 24 Hour Job

A Adjective file landed in front of Person A, thrown by Pegasus, the leader of MI7. "Agent 1, we need you to put a stop to the Adjective threat in Cheowang. We sent Agent 7 there Number months ago and learned a great deal of Adjective facts, which I have listed in that file, although we lost contact with him shortly after he was posted there."

"Very well," Person A said. "exclamation, how Adjective is this file?"

"Repeat Last Adjective enough," Pegasus replied.

The next day, Person A was Verb Past Tense with other field agents and intelligence officers, all Verb Present ends in ING the file they had been given. Only one field agent and one intelligence officer would be assigned to the mission. Person A looked up to see Person B, his Adjective companion in the field. Person B was a Adjective intelligence officer specialising in Verb Present ends in ING and Verb Present ends in ING. A perfect match for Person A possessive Adjective vision and Adjective abstract noun skills.

"Person A! Person B! We are assigning you two to the mission. If you have any issues, please come and Verb Base Form with me after this meeting. Make your way to the Room of a facility room, Person A. The rest of you are dismissed."

went the Adjective mechanism of the automatic doors. Person A pressed his Part of Body on the "key" and the second set of automatic doors Verb Past Tense for him. He stepped through and Verb Past Tense Adverb, so that the smell of Noun and Noun would fill his Part of Body. He only took a few steps forward before being greeted by Patch Quatermain, a Adjective wheelchair-bound man in his late 40s, who had been a designer and manufacturer of MI7 equipment for decades. "Here's what you'll be taking with you to Cheowang, Agent 1." Patch gestured to a Adjective table with many, seemingly Adjective, items. "The D2 Digital Dart Gun: simply aim and Verb Base Form; the service issue ballpoint - Verb Base Form it twice and a Noun tipped dart will fire; and finally a satellite receiver, Verb Present ends in ING device and Semtex Verb Present ends in ING gum."

"Thank you, Patch," Person A replied Adverb. "I trust that Person B will be Verb Present ends in ING here while I make the trip?"

"No actually, the mobile telecommunications centre was recently brought out of testing and is available to be used. It should mean that Person B will be able to provider better and faster remote support."

"Alright, thank you Patch. I'll be Verb Present ends in ING then."

The next day, Person A and Person B were on a plane to Cheowang, a Adjective island off the east coast of China. It looks quite Adjective from up here, Person B said looking through the plane window. Person A barely Verb Past Tense - he was too busy thinking about what could be going on down on the island. Too busy wondering about the little vignette of deceit and villainy. Too busy worrying about what had happened to Agent 7 and if he and Person B would meet the same fate.

It wasn't long before they were Adverb at their Number star hotel and Verb Present ends in ING their things. Outside it was beginning to rain and most people were Verb Present ends in ING inside.

However, from his hotel window, Person A could see a trio of men talking closely. One of the men Verb Past Tense at him, which startled Person A, but as soon as he Verb Past Tense back outside, the men had Verb Past Tense and were nowhere to be seen. "Person B, could you come here a minute?" There was no reply. "Person B?" asked Person A in a Verb Present ends in ING tone. "Where are you?" Still there was no reply. Person A looked over his Part of Body to see that the door to the room was still Adjective. He got up and cautiously made his way to Person B possessive bed side. "OOGA!" Screamed Person B. "You little belly!" roared Person A in an angry tone. "You scared the Verb Present ends in ING abstract noun out of me. I thought you had been taken!"

"Don't worry, Person A. I'm absolutely fine. The look on your Part of Body when you Verb Past Tense was Adjective!"

"Indeed...Now, have you got the mobile telecommunications centre ready in that alleyway?"

"I sure have. It's fully Adjective and I've already synced it with your watch. I'll make my way down and you get yourself over to the incident location, alright?"

"Let's go!"

The roads of Cheowang were Adjective and moderately Adjective. The occasional roadkill could be seen, but the road surface was mostly Adjective. The closer he got to his destination, the more he was unsure of whether it was Adjective or not. The road became Adjective, but the space surrounding the roads became Adjective and more Adjective. After Number more minutes or so of driving Person A could see what appeared to be a Noun. There were brightly lit Noun Plural and he could begin to see some people Verb Present ends in ING around. He drove onwards and parked in a nearby parking space. Person A stepped out, taking note of his surroundings. He could see a few Adjective shops and one building which Verb Past Tense over the others. It was Adjective and had at least Number windows in total, with each window being brightly lit. However, there was no place name to be seen. This Adjective building stood alone amongst a sea of Adjective Noun Plural and Noun Plural. "Are you getting this, Person B?"

"Hold on, let me Verb Base Form. Hold up the Noun gun."

Person B was as amazed as Person A was to see the large structure before him. "See if you can get a closer look at it and tell me its name. I'll try and pull some information for you."

"I've tried, but I haven't seen anything. Try _____ Verb Present ends in ING it anyway."

"Alright. All I can find is that a company named _____ Proper Noun bought some land in 2011. That's all I can find."

"Very well. I'll take a closer look."

_____ Person A walked closer to the large building, but when he was only _____ Number metres away or so, a foreign voice shouted out: "You dair! STOP!" _____ Person A looked behind him and saw a man _____ Verb Present ends in ING before him. A man who looked like a normal citizen. "I am afraid you arrre going to haff to come with me, sir," he said with an _____ Adjective grin. Before _____ Person A could reach his service issue ballpoint, he was out _____ Adjective.

* * *

_____ Person A possessive _____ Part of Body was _____ Verb Present ends in ING and his thoughts were _____ Verb Present ends in ING. "How long had I been here?" "Where am I?" "What is going on here?" He looked down to see that he was _____ Verb Past Tense to a bed that was leaning at a _____ Number degree angle. _____ Person A had lots of training for these situations so he was _____ Adverb surprised to find that he was able to break free of his restraints with minimal effort. He could use his day 1 training to break free! How _____ Adjective, he thought. He checked his _____ Part of Body for his ear pieces, but they were gone. So was all his equipment. Even his epidermis _____ Part of Body implants. Those usually go undetected to even the most _____ Adjective _____ of captors. Things weren't making much sense, but _____ Person A _____ kept it together as he made his way to the door in front of him. He reached the door, but from behind him, he heard a _____ Adjective _____ voice. The voice of _____ Person B _____.

"You've gone on far enough, Agent 1. This all ends here."

"What are you talking about?"

Those were the last words _____ Person A _____ said before _____ Person B _____ _____ Verb Past Tense _____ him.

The end.
