Leftover Stew

Sometimes, when I am really low on groceries, and really _____Adjective_____; _____Adjective_____ or _____Adjective_____, I make myself a _____Adjective_____ bowl of leftover stew. Leftover stew is not just one easy puzzle such as : Bread+ weenie + mustard equals hot dog. Nope, nope,nope. Leftover stew has no one recipe. It is made with whatever the _____Noun_____ is in your fridge and/ or pantry. It can be anything from chili ,cheese , and breadcrums , which is really just a crushed chili dog with a _____Noun_____ or _____Noun_____, to some _____Adjective_____ bullcrap that normally any people that are not from the planet of _____Noun_____ (AKA a _____Noun_____)would ever think to do! An example of this would be :_____Noun_____, _____Noun_____, _____Noun_____, _____Noun_____, _____Noun_____ , salt, and cayanne pepper . (Something I doubt would taste even tolerably by the way.) It can be _____Adjective_____ to make. Here are the steps regardless of what you use :

Step 1: Get random food out of your _____Noun_____

Step 2: Get random food out of your _____Noun_____

Step 3 : Decide what of the stuff you will use and what you will not.

Step 4: Put the stuff you decided not to use back where it goes.

Step 5: Decide the order you want to arrange the remaining items

Step 6: Arrange them

Step 7: _____Verb Base Form_____ it to the temperature you _____Adjective_____.

Step 8: Put the crap in your _____Noun_____ and hope the gamble you just took works in your favor.

Step 9: Clean up
