The Magic Pumpkin

Holy Noun ! The Halloween pumpkin has turned into an eerie Adjective Noun ! This Halloween night promises to be one we'll never forget. I Verb Past Tense with rapt attention as the Repeat Last Noun Verb Past Tense its way down Street Name street. In case you were wondering, the public was none the wiser because the Repeat Last Noun blended in with every boy and girl in costume who was out trick-or-treating. I'm not sure how the pumpkin turned into the thing it did, perhaps it's just the magic of Halloween, or perhaps it's this Adjective carving knife given to me by the Adjective man at the local store Noun Plural , Tricks & Magic Emporium. If I recall correctly, the Repeat Last Adjective man warned me that the knife possessed Adjective powers. Of course, I Verb Base Form ed at him because I was sure he was being Adjective in the spirit of Halloween. I guess I was wrong to Repeat Last Verb Base Form , so I issue this warning to the boys and girls; Be careful, for not everybody on the streets tonight is another Noun in costume.
