The [noun], the [noun], and the [noun]

A great Singular noun was about to come off between the Regular plural noun 1 and the Regular plural noun 2. When the two Irregular plural noun were collected together the Singular noun 3 hesitated which to join. The Same as noun 1 that passed his Male singular noun said: "Come with us"; but he said: "I am a Same as noun 2 but in singular".;

Later on, some Same as noun 2 who were passing underneath him looked up and said: "Come with us"; but he said: "I am a Same as noun 1 but in singular".; Luckily at the last Singular noun peace was made, and no Singular noun took place, so the Same as noun 3 came to the Same as noun 1 and wished to join in the Irregular plural noun but they all turned against him and he had to fly away. Same as noun 3 then went to the Same as noun 2, but soon had to beat a Singular noun or else they would have torn him to Irregular plural noun. "Ah,"; said the Same as noun 3, "I see now".

"He that is neither one Singular noun nor the Singular noun has no Irregular plural noun;.
