Carlson Craft

It was Summer of 2019, when a _____ Adjective supervisor named Karen needed to hire _____ Number agents to work directly with Carlson Craft dealers. Karen knew this would be a _____ Adverb challenge as it is very important to her that the customer's needs are met. Once she made her decision, she put her agents in the hands of two _____ Adjective trainers who would gladly take on the challenge to help mold the new agents into being the _____ Adjective Ends in EST agents they could be.

The _____ Verb Present ends in ING training is scheduled to take _____ Number weeks as it is important the _____ Adjective agents leave with the knowledge they need to support the customers. Luckily for the _____ Adjective agents, they will be paired up with mentors once done with training to ensure they are _____ Verb Present ends in ING.

On the first day of working on their own, the _____ Adjective agents found themselves lost in the _____ Location area where they discovered the most _____ Adjective print material they've ever seen. The production supervisor put them straight to work. Meanwhile in the office, the _____ Adjective scheduler, LeAnn, was becoming increasingly worried as GOS was not doing as well as it should. LeAnn decided to go looking for the agents and found them assembling _____ Number fans.

Once the _____ Adjective agents were found and brought back to the _____ Location, they were busy taking their calls for the day. James, the Adjective Quality Monitor Analyst, let them know that the calls he was listening to were the Adjective Ends in EST he's ever heard. Good thing Carlson Craft has these Adjective new agents as they are saving the day for dealer's and their customers.
