Food diaries

When stuck at home, the most consistent thing in my life has been food. So much so that I thought it'd be interesting to document my week.

Day 1: Cleaned out leftovers in the fridge. [Number] containers of [[Fave Food]], something that's marked with [date]. and something [Adjective - ends in Y] and [color]-colord

Day 2: Went to the [type of store] store and bought [Number - two digits] barrels of [sweet treat plural] and forgot to get [Food you cant live without]

Day 3: Tried to cook a [Comfort food dish] in the microwave. It took [number] rounds of nuking and [number less than ten] out of 10 would not recommend.

Day 4: Felt inspired as I scrolled through the social media hashtag #quarantinecooking and imagined myself mastering the art of [verb - ends with ING] while juggling [hand-held food]

Day 5: Discovered that eating the same food 5 days straight is in fact, [adjective - ends with ING].

Day 6: Found a dried [fave snack] behind the couch. Contemplated if it was still good to eat.

Day 7: Didn't realize that I would be attracted to the smell of [scent]. It made me feel the sweet, sweet emotion of [feeling] and I can't get enough. Makes me want to eat [food you love

Looking forward to a [adjective] week to come!
