Interview with Avatar 2 Creators

The storyline in the sequels really follows Jake and Neytiri, and their _____Animal - Plural_____. It's more of a family saga about the struggle with _____Noun Plural_____.

We made the decision for the sequels not to do necessarily what other science fiction movies do, which is if they want _____Noun Plural_____ they go to the _____Repeat Last Noun Plural_____ planet; and if they want _____Noun Plural_____, they go to the _____Repeat Last Noun Plural_____ planet.

We looked at all the _____Noun Plural_____ the Earth shows us, and we realized we could travel our whole lives and not _____Verb Base Form_____ all the _____Adjective_____ _____Repeat Last Noun Plural_____ Earth has. So I made the decision to set the sequels all on Pandora. Our stories introduce us to different environments, and also _____Adjective_____ _____Animal - Plural_____.

We're making standalone movies that will stand alone. Rather than rushing into doing the sequels, we have to _____Verb Base Form_____ our _____Noun Plural_____, and that's the _____Adjective Ends in EST_____. Knowing that we wanted to tell multiple stories, we didn't just want to solve one script. We wanted to solve the scripts for all of the movies we wanted to make before we ventured out into making them. That's what took us the time.
