_____ Name _____, the only _____ Animal _____ in _____ Place name _____.

It all began with an innocent _____ Verb Base Form _____ through an abandoned _____ premises EG bakery or theme park _____ site at night. number between one and five of us were heading home from the shopping mall. But a damaged Noun landed right in front of us and from that point on nothing was Adjective again.

We are not alone in this universe. on other planets, highly Adjective life evolved. there are races like the Ellimists, who make Animal - Plural look as dumb as Animal - Plural. There are the hork-bajir, the taxxons, and then there are the yeerks who enslaved them. They are parasites, just colour Animal - Plural really. you could step on one and squash it like a Noun. But the yeerks Verb Base Form into other species' heads. They Verb Base Form out their bodies, Verb Base Form themselves around the brain, and take control.

But we have one weapon against them: the ability to morph into any animal we can touch.

I've morphed several animals to fight the yeerks. I've morphed an Animal and felt the Adjective Verb Present ends in ING power of it's body part. I've morphed a tiny Animal and experienced it's amazing agility. I've even morphed a Animal and felt the emotion and emotion of Verb Present ends in ING above the city, Verb Present ends in ING on the air. The others all have their own battle morphs too: Animal - Plural, Animal - Plural, Animal - Plural... we even morphed Animal - Plural one time, but never again; none of us are willing to deal with the Adjective, mindless instinct to Verb Base Form.

The point is, the yeerks won't take over Place, so long as i'm around to stop them.
