We're off to see the Wizard

So once more the little Noun set off upon the journey, the Lion Verb Present ends in ING with stately strides at Dorothy's side. Toto did not approve of this new comrade at first, for he could not forget how nearly he had been crushed between the Lion's great Noun. But after a time he became more at Adjective, and presently Toto and the Cowardly Lion had grown to be Adjective friends.

During the rest of that day there was no other adventure to mar the peace of their Noun. Once, indeed, the Tin Woodman stepped upon a Noun that was crawling along the road, and killed the poor little thing. This made the Tin Woodman very Adjective, for he was always careful not to hurt any living creature; and as he walked along he wept several tears of sorrow and regret. These Noun Plural ran slowly down his face and over the hinges of his jaw, and there they rusted. When Dorothy presently asked him a question the Tin Woodman could not open his Noun, for his jaws were tightly rusted together. He became Adverb frightened at this and made many motions to Dorothy to relieve him, but she could not understand. The Lion was also Verb Past Tense to know what was wrong. But the Scarecrow seized the Noun from Dorothy's basket and Verb Past Tense the Woodman's jaws, so that after a few moments he could Verb Base Form as well as before.

"This will serve me a Noun," said he, "to look where I Verb Base Form. For if I should Verb Base Form another bug or beetle I should surely Verb Base Form again, and crying rusts my Noun so that I cannot speak."

Thereafter he walked very _____, with his eyes on the _____, and when he saw a tiny ant _____ by he would step over it, so as not to _____ it. The Tin Woodman knew very well he had no _____, and therefore he took great care never to be _____ or _____ to anything.

"You people with _____," he said, "have something to _____ you, and need never do wrong; but I have no _____, and so I must be very _____. When Oz gives me a _____ of course I needn't mind so much."
