My Camping Adventure

When we finally arrived at our campsite, _____ Noun _____ was in the air as we knew our thrilling _____ Noun _____ was about to begin. Our tent site was full of _____ Adjective _____ Noun Plural _____ that seemed to be reaching out, inviting us into the wilderness. As fortune would have it, one of the _____ Repeat Last Noun Plural _____ had a particularly _____ Adjective _____ kind of fruit popularly known as _____ Adjective _____ cherries. I should caution you however, I was informed that not all wild berries are _____ Adjective _____, in fact, some are _____ Adjective _____ and therefore should be avoided at all costs. That first night we were lulled to sleep by a symphony of _____ Adjective _____ sounds, from the classic _____ Verb Present ends in ING _____ sound of the _____ Insect plural _____ to the soft _____ animal _____ sound _____ of a distant owl. If I'm not mistaken, at midnight a pack of _____ Animal - Plural _____ was _____ Verb _____ Present ends in ING _____ at the moon. After a/an _____ Adjective _____ sleep and hearty breakfast, we set off for an exploratory hike through the forest. I became _____ Adjective _____ when I heard a/an strange _____ Verb Present ends in ING _____ amongst the bushes that seemed to be following us. Upon closer investigation, we discovered that the _____ Repeat Last Verb Present ends in ING _____ belonged to a harmless woodland creature known by its common name the " _____ Adjective _____ Squirrel." Native to the area, this reddish _____ color _____ squirrel was rather friendly and was _____ Adverb _____ demanding I share my trail mix with him. What a perfect feast my trail mix was for him, full of tasty _____ food plural _____ and _____ food plural _____ and bits of granola. I know I shouldn't feed the wildlife, but I think my mix conformed quite closely to his dietary needs. For the rest of our journey, we discussed and observed a number of natural _____ Noun Plural _____ such as the _____ color _____ _____ Adjective _____ moss growing on the trees, to the various _____ Adjective _____ leaves scattered along our walking path. We had a _____ Adjective _____ adventure and can't wait for our next camping trip.
