The Apocalypse

The day was Wednesday, July 16th. It was the year _____Number_____, and things had been _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ south for a while now. But no one really knew how _____Adjective_____ it was going to get.

For a few decades, humanity had been _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ along _____Adverb_____ . The streams were now filled with _____Adjective_____ sludge, and the skies were _____Adjective_____ and cloudy - no one had seen a _____Color_____ sky in almost _____Number_____ years. But the economy was still _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ _____Adverb_____ at least. _____Company_____ had taken over the world's governments for a little while, but now everyone was _____Verb Past Tense_____ by that that company from _____Location_____ again.

We had thought that things were getting better, but that just shows how wrong we were. Because that morning, it all went upside down. We had been _____Verb Past Tense_____ about _____Proper Noun Plural_____ for a little while, but no one really expected them to use their _____Noun Plural_____. But of course, they did. _____Pronoun_____ was one of the lucky ones - the people in my _____Location_____ had been preparing for years for this day, and most of us were able to get into the bomb shelter in time. _____Conjunction_____ we could still see everything happening from the security cameras though.

It all happened so fast. Small _____Noun Plural_____ disappeared almost instantly. Trees caught fire for a _____Length of time_____, then were gone the next. And the people... it was _____Adjective_____ to watch.

_____Pronoun_____ waited for a few days, but while we were waiting, _____Repeat Last Pronoun_____ talked about the future. _____Repeat Last Pronoun_____ knew that we didn't want to _____Verb Base Form_____ through the _____Adjective_____ things that had happened, so _____Repeat Last Pronoun_____ came up with a plan.
