Transition Centre gets stuck

Once upon a time, there was a place called the Transition Centre.

At the transition centre, there were lots of Adjective things to do as such as Verb Present ends in ING,
Verb Present ends in ING, and Verb Present ends in ING.

There are 23 Adjective students and 12 Adjective teachers and teacher aides.

Every day we go out and explore the community.

One day, when the class went out in the Noun- transport to Long Bay. Eric lost the keys. Everyone was feeling really adjective- red zone feeling. The weather was adjective- weather and adjective- weather.

What should they do?!

Proper noun- Name said "we need to call noun place".

Proper noun- Name said "we need to Verb to the closest noun place".

Proper noun- Name said "we need to Verb for help".

But Proper noun- Name said no way, "we need to call our noun- family for help".

Everyone was searching far and wide for those missing keys. They were looking Preposition the van and Preposition the bench.

Luckily, Proper noun- Name found the spare keys in their noun- personal belonging.

Proper noun- Name drove everyone back to the Transition centre, where they ate a Adjective noun- food lunch.
