Dorian Gray

"It is your best work, First Name of a Person, the best thing you have ever done," said First Name of a Person Adverb. "You must certainly send it next year to the famous building. The building is too large and too adjective that describes a building. Whenever I have gone there, there have been either so many household item - plural that I have not been able to see the Noun Plural, which was dreadful, or so many Noun Plural that I have not been able to see the animal - plural, which was worse. The repeat famous building from earlier is really the only place."

"I don't think I shall send it anywhere," he answered, tossing his Part of Body back in that odd way that used to make his friends laugh at him at Oxford. "No, I won't send it anywhere."

Repeat Last First Name of a Person elevated his Part of Body and looked at him in amazement through the Adjective blue wreaths of smoke that curled up in such fanciful whorls from his Adjective, over-the-counter medicine tainted cigarette. "Not send it anywhere? My dear term of endearment, why?

Have you any reason? What odd land mammal - plural you profession - plural are! You do anything in the world to gain a reputation. As soon as you have one, you seem to want to throw it away. It is

Adjective of you, for there is only one thing in the world worse than being talked about, and that is food that you find disgusting. A something that men desire - singular noun like this would set you far above all the young men in somewhere that men congregate, and make the Adjective men quite jealous, if men are ever capable of any emotion."

"I know you will laugh at me," he replied, "but I really can't exhibit it. I have put too much food - plural into it."

Repeat Last First Name of a Person stretched himself out on the piece of furniture and action verb - past tense.
