I Can't Believe You're Mine Love Story

It was a glorious, Adjective autumn.

We'd just left the coffee shop. When we walked by, she had giggled and pulled me inside, saying, "C'mon, let's be Adjective Adjective girls and get some pumpkin spice!"

I don't like Noun. I never had. But when she handed me my cup and looked into my body part plural while I tried it, it was the best thing I'd ever tasted.

My body part still tingled where she grabbed it.

As we walked through the park with our drinks, a light drizzle began to fall. She pulled out an umbrella from her Noun, I pulled up my Noun and hunched my body part plural.

"Don't be Adjective," she giggled, pulling me under the umbrella with her. I couldn't help but Verb Base Form too, her laugh is infectious.

As the sun started to shine again, she pulled me down to sit on a Noun. She beamed down at me, and I could only Verb Base Form back adoringly.

"So _____First Name..." She began. I knew this tone of voice, it's _____Adjective.

"Who do you like?" She whispered, and I looked away. I wanted to say, _____Person, _____Person, a thousand times _____Person. _____Person Possessive the only one I can ever think about. You're gorgeous and _____Adjective and _____Adjective and...'

Instead, I _____Verb past tense modifying a noun my shoulders and looked down at my _____Noun.

She looked at me with a _____Adjective smile. "If I tell you mine, will you tell me yours?"

"Okay." I said.

"The person I like... ...is _____Person."

I drop my drink.
