State 6

Honolulu, Hawaii

The word Honolulu means "protected _____Noun_____" in the Hawaiian language, and it's thought that there has been a _____Noun_____ in the spot since the 12th century. Despite English _____Noun Plural_____ wanting to call it _____Adjective_____ _____Proper Noun_____ or _____Last Name possessive_____ Harbor (after Captain _____First Name_____ _____Last Name_____, who landed there in 1778), the Hawaiian name for the city stuck, and it was ultimately declared capital of the Hawaiian kingdom by King _____Name_____ III in 1850, more than a _____number_____ years before Hawaii became a state in 1959.

Boise, Idaho

Boise (pronounced "_____cool word_____" by locals, not "_____cool word_____") is a French word that means "_____Noun_____," which, legend has it, is what 19th-century French Canadian _____Noun_____ trappers exclaimed when they saw the _____Adjective_____ banks of the Boise River: "Les _____exclamation_____!" It appeared like an oasis after crossing the plains of the _____Adjective_____ part of the state. Some accounts say they called it "la _____French word_____ _____French word_____," which means "the _____Adjective_____ _____Noun_____." Even today, Boise is known as the "City of _____Proper Noun_____." In 1864, a year after Idaho _____Noun_____ was established with _____Cool Word_____ as the capital, that distinction moved to Boise, and Idaho became a state in 1890. Today, Boise's _____Adjective_____ Idaho State _____Location_____ is one of the spookiest _____Adjective_____ places.
