The Jehovah's Witnesses

Some Jehovas Witnesses Verb Past Tense on my Noun, and I was Adjective enough to answer. "______ day to you sir," the one said to me ______. "Would you like to hear about our _____ and Savior?" The other one asked. They looked like brothers with their _____ Color ____ hair, matching ______ Article of clothing plural _____ and ties, and that ______ Adjective _____ smile of theirs. Before I could say Verbal Expression to the invitation, they pulled out their Noun Plural and began preaching. They started with Genesis and the classic story of Adam and Eve who ate the ______Adjective ______ Food _____ from the Tree of Knowledge. " And God banished them from ______ as punishment for their disobedience." Said the one JW. Naturally, the boys segued into the story of Moses and the Number commandments, and Noah and his famous Noun . The history lesson eventually progressed after Number hours, to the book of ______ First Name of a Person _____ in the ______ Testament, which is about the time I got up my nerve to say thanks for Verb Present ends in ING by. Oh, don't worry I was nice about it. I offered them each a/n ______ Repeat Last Food _____, thanked them, and ______ Verb Past Tense ______ them on their way.
