The Dreaded Report

I _____Verb Past Tense_____ my eyes at the teacher today because she assigned me to write a report on Jazz _____Noun_____ Louis _____Part of Body_____strong . How _____Adjective_____ right? I mean who cares about a multi-talented _____Profession_____ anyway, who not only wrote and _____Verb Past Tense_____ songs but whose iconic _____Noun_____ is synonymous with jazz all over the _____Noun_____? Speaking of the "_____Repeat Last Noun_____," wasn't _____Repeat Last Part of Body_____ Strong made famous for his recording of the hit song "What a Wonderful _____Repeat Last Noun_____?" Geez... I'm falling asleep already, aren't you? Oh, I almost forgot the _____Animal_____ in the room as they say , I know, I know,... I haven't yet mentioned his Instruments! So apparently, (sorry to _____Verb Base Form_____ you with this) _____Repeat Last Part of Body_____ strong was pretty good with one of those

_____Adjective_____ instruments. You know... The _____Musical Instrument_____, or whatever. I mean who knew that all those notes and _____Adjective_____ sounds could be _____Verb Past Tense_____ out of a twisted _____Material_____ horn with just _____Number_____ valves? I know I'm ranting here. Okay, to be fair, I should make mention of his other instrument for which he is known. That would be unquestionably his _____Musical Instrument_____! A raspy and _____Adjective_____ sounding instrument that really made him _____Verb Base Form_____ out as a one-of-a-kind jazz vocalist. Fun Fact! I heard somewhere, that his vocal _____Noun Plural_____ were surgically operated on in an attempt to "correct" his _____Adjective_____ sounding voice. However, it ironically had the opposite effect serving to make his voice worse, or _____Adjective_____...   depends on how you look at it. So in conclusion, I hope you can see why this _____Adjective_____ report on Jazz _____Noun_____ Louis _____Repeat Last Part of Body_____ strong should not be written.
