More stories at WordBlanks.com

THE RODENT'S GAZETTE

1. Adjective _____
2. Noun _____
3. Noun _____
4. Adjective _____
5. Noun _____
6. Noun _____
7. Verb Present Ends In Ing _____
8. Verb Present Ends In Ing _____
9. Noun _____
10. Verb Base Form _____
11. Noun _____
12. Proper Noun _____
13. Adjective _____
14. Noun _____

THE RODENT'S GAZETTE

NEW MOUSE CITY-A vat overturned early today at the _____Adjective_____ _____Noun_____ Company plant, sending a river of liquid _____Noun_____ out into Ratford Avenue and bringing traffic to a standstill. The nearby George Mousington Elementary School became an island in a lake of runny _____Adjective_____ _____Noun_____. Young rodents on their way to school found the way blocked by thousands of gallons of the gooey _____Noun_____. While they were staring in amazement, a pupil identified as Billy De Ratte pushed little Matthew Mousekin in. But instead of getting stuck, the young mouse began _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ around and _____Verb Present ends in ING_____ to his friends, "Come on in! The _____Noun_____ is fine!"

Dozens of school rodents took the hint, _____Verb Base Form_____ , and joined him. Soon, a _____Noun_____ gathered to watch the fun. When the school principal, Mr. _____Proper Noun_____, finally arrived and tried to restore order, the unruly swimmers splashed him all over with the _____Adjective_____ stuff.

Realizing that there was no danger and that the youngsters were having a grand time, he declared school canceled for the day.

Then, with a loud shout of "Wheee!" he made a perfect swan dive into the _____Noun_____, a feat that was greeted by loud cheers from youngsters and grown rodents alike.

©2026 WordBlanks.com · All Rights Reserved.