mystery of the lost brush

The year was 2025, and it was 8:20 on a Friday morning. I was about to head into a Data Points meeting, so I had put on a little makeup and was getting ready to turn on my camera. When I saw the camera preview of myself, I realized that I had not brushed my hair. I searched high and low for my _____Noun_____, but I couldn't _____Verb Base Form_____ it anywhere. Glancing at the time, I noticed it was already five minutes before the meeting was set to start. In a panic, I ran into the kitchen, grabbed a plastic serving fork--since it was all I could find in such a rush--and tried to _____Verb Base Form_____ through my hair. After a few strokes with the fork, I suddenly _____Verb Past Tense_____ my hairbrush; it had been stuck in my hair from my previous attempt to _____Verb Base Form_____ it the other night.
